SUDDEN DEPARTURE OF IRISH DELEGATE STARTS CONJECTURE

Observers at Ottawa Link Secret Discussions Between Thomas and O'Kelly With Return of Free State Minister to Dublin—Urgent Business Given as Reason for Move

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP).—Conference observers tonight were liberal in their speculations upon the departure for Dublin of Dr. James Ryan, Irish Free State Minister of Agriculture, who had been one of the delegates from that Dominion to the Imperial Economic Conference. Coupling with this the acknowledged fact that Sean T. O'Kelly, leader of the group, had had frequent meetings with Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, British Secretary of State for the Dominions, the "quidnuncs" saw in Dr. Ryan's action a link between these secret discussions and President Eamon de Valera.

Some did not hesitate to hazard the guess that the Free State Minister had been called to Dublin for the purpose of reporting to Mr. de Valera on the progress of these conversations. In this connection other members of the Irish delegation scouted the rumor, and indicated the official statement issued today as accurately interpreting the motive of Dr. Ryan's departure. That statement declared that "urgent business" had necessitated the minister's return home. Beyond that they would not comment.

IN CONSTANT TOUCH
The speculation that Dr. Ryan was commissioned to report on the situation to the Free State executive was enlivened by the fact that Sean T. O'Kelly has been in constant touch with Mr. de Valera by transatlantic telephone since coming to Ottawa. It is known that the moves of the delegation have had the endorsement of the President, who is kept apprised of what is going on here.

AGRICULTURAL PROGRAMME
DUBLIN, Aug. 8 (CP).—The encouragement of wheat growing figures prominently in the new agricultural programme of the Free State Government.
The importance of this development led to the recall of Dr. James Ryan, Minister of Agriculture, who had been at Ottawa as a member of the Free State delegation to the Imperial Conference.

Accompanied by F. J. Meyrick, secretary of his department, Dr. Ryan is reported to have left Ottawa tonight.

LONG ILLNESS PROVES FATAL

Hon. N. A. Belcourt, Veteran Member of Senate, Had Long Political Career

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP).—Hon. N. A. Belcourt, prominent French Canadian leader, member of the Senate since 1907, and King's Counsel, is dead here after a long illness. He was seventy-one years old. His death came Sunday at his summer home at Blue Sea Lake, Quebec, where he had been spending the summer months in an endeavor to regain his failing health.

During his lengthy career he had been a member of the Ottawa Bar, a Crown attorney of Carleton County, Liberal member of Parliament for the Capital, speaker of the House of Commons, and member of the Senate for twenty-five years.

He was a descendant of the early French settlers, his father, Ferdinand Napoleon Belcourt, being the founder of the first French-Canadian life insurance company in Canada.

The funeral will be held Wednesday morning, with service at Sacred Heart Church, and burial in Notre Dame Cemetery.

VANCOUVER PIONEER CROSSES THE DIVIDE

VANCOUVER, Aug. 8.—Archibald York, aged seventy, of West Eleventh, pioneer resident of Vancouver, who, with his wife, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last February, died at his residence on Sunday night, following prolonged ill-health. He came to Vancouver in 1888, two years after the big fire, and established a general store on Cordova Street.

Vancouver Bandits' Spoil Runs From Togs to Logs

VANCOUVER, Aug. 8.—Slugged by a bandit while in the 3200 Block, West Second, at 2:45 a.m. Monday, L. Thomas, Marine Drive, dairy driver, fought off his assailant and escaped being robbed. Mr. Thomas told the police that the man crept up behind him and struck him over the head with some blunt instrument. In spite of the fact that he was badly dazed by the blow, he grappled with his attacker, who, finding himself in danger of being overpowered, broke away and fled. Thieves, taking advantage of the open windows at night during the recent warm weather, have robbed a number of citizens while they

Centre of War Threat in South America

CONTINUED dispute over the Chaco territory between Bolivia and Paraguay in South America brought an almost open break between the two Latin countries, which has resulted in the mobilization of military forces of both countries. Dispatches indicate the situation is serious, while the League of Nations is endeavoring to bring about a peaceful settlement of the dispute. Photos above show, top, left to right, Bolivian cavalry ready for action, and a street scene in La Paz, capital city of Bolivia; below, left, is view in the Gran Chaco, the disputed territory; centre, the palace of the President in Asuncion, capital of Paraguay; right, a Paraguayan irregular soldier in the field; and extreme right, map showing South America, the two nations, and the territory over which they have disputed for years.

Five Premiers in Fight to Market Canadian Lumber

Joint Presentation Made to Bennett Following Individual Explanations of Provincial Conditions—Russia Fighting to Hold Her Grip on British Trade

OTTAWA, Aug. 8.—Five provinces today gave unequivocal support to Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in his fight to gain a place in Great Britain for Canadian lumber. Premiers and ministers met the Prime Minister this afternoon following a long morning conference, at which each province's leader outlined the position of the industry in his province and a joint presentation was made.

The market of the United States, which was until recently the chief purchaser of Canadian lumber, was closed by a revenue duty of $3 per 1,000 feet on lumber. There remains only the great British market as a hope for re-establishment of a measure of moderate prosperity. This market is at present held by Russia.

EXPORT PERMIT ASKED ON LOGS

Foreign Market for 3,500,000, if Home Needs First Assured

Slightly improved tone in British Columbia lumber operations had a reflection this week in application for leave to export 3,500,000 board feet of logs out of stocks in hand and in the water. The application will be heard by the provincial committee on log export, at Vancouver, on Wednesday. It was initiated yesterday by Hon. N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Lands, chairman of the committee.

Loggers with large stocks of logs on hand are seeking leave to export a portion of these supplies; while millmen claim that logging stocks at present on hand may all be required for home production. If export is permitted, the loggers contend, they will at once put gangs to work in the woods getting out additional supplies.

The merits of the application will go before the provincial committee, which consists of three representatives from each phase of the industry.

CROP PROSPECTS IN RUSSIA POOR

Supply of Soviet Wheat on Market Not Expected to Influence Prices

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP).—Poor crop prospects in Russia are indicated in the report by districts which the Canadian Bureau of Statistics received by cable today from its London correspondent.

"Grain exports," the summary declares, "are dependent upon the policy of the Soviet Government and the urgency of the need of foreign currency. The country needs all its grains for food, especially in view of the continued acute shortage of other foodstuffs."

Since it was the flood of Russian wheat on the market last autumn that broke the prices, the Russian crop prospects are of particular interest to Canada. Last year Russia exported to July 31, a total of 71,000,000 bushels, but the present report indicates that it will reach nothing like those proportions this year.

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP).—Great Britain has requested further negotiations on Canada's offer of preference for preference. Discussions between the Canadian and British delegations were interrupted today by a letter from Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin to Premier Bennett. Announcement that the letter had been dispatched created immediate excitement in the conference entourage.

STUDY PLAN OF EXCHANGE

Committee Discussing Plan in Eliminating Pound-Dollar Fluctuation

OTTAWA, Aug. 8 (CP).—A proposal to steady the exchange between Canada and Great Britain, and also to economize in the transfer of money between the two countries is stated to be before the committee on monetary and financial questions of the Imperial Conference.

At present a British importer pays for his Canadian purchases in Canadian dollars, and the Canadian importer pays for British goods in sterling, also bought in New York. With the fluctuations in exchange and the costs of thus transferring money, this makes for uncertainty and expense.

PLAN ON EXCHANGE
The proposal is that the Canadian banks pay for British purchases made in Canada at a fixed rate of exchange and British banks pay for Canadian purchases made in the United Kingdom at a corresponding rate. At fixed periods there would be a general accounting, say every six months, when difference between the total purchases in the two countries would be paid and a fresh start made. The Government would stand to protect the banks against loss in such an arrangement.

Richard Dickinson Loses Life Learning to Swim Near Kamloops

Richard D. Dickinson, aged twenty-eight years, formerly of Victoria, was drowned in the South Thompson River, about eleven miles east of Kamloops on Sunday afternoon, according to news received here yesterday.

Mr. Dickinson was well known here. He was a member of the Douglas-Cormorant branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and after serving for some time as teller, was transferred to Vancouver. Last week he went to Kamloops to take the position of assistant accountant in the branch there.

The young man, with two other members of the staff and another friend, after having a light supper, motored out to a private bathing place to learn to swim.

Chancellor von Papen Preparing Drastic Measures to Curb Terrorism

BERLIN, Aug. 8 (AP).—Chancellor Franz von Papen is determined to use the most drastic measures for putting down terrorism in Germany, said a brief semi-official communiqué issued tonight, after a meeting for tomorrow.

Whether the ruthless measures indicated would include capital punishment remained momentarily an open question. It was recalled that death was the penalty in 1919 for anyone found carrying a lethal weapon.

UPSWING IN PRICES OF RAW MATERIALS STIRS U.S. MARKETS

Stocks Throw Off Three Successive Waves of Profit Taking—Cotton Leads Staples' Advance—Trading Swiftest in Nearly Two Years

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The most violent upswing in cotton stocks in nearly two years, the swiftest trading in bonds in two months, marked the big bull push in leading United States financial markets today.

Cotton surged up more than $5 a bale as the Government estimated this year's crop far below the average of recent years, and Wall Street quickly recalled a short crop in that staple in 1921 was an important factor in boosting the markets out of the post-war depression.

Stocks met three successive waves of profit taking, and the last one quickly recalled a short crop in that staple in 1921 was an important factor in boosting the markets out of the post-war depression.

Will Transfer Male Prisoners to Pier Island in Few Days

Abundant Supply of Water Found at New Doukhobor Penal Colony Site, Engineers of Federal Department of Works Report

TRANSFER of male Doukhobor prisoners, held at Oakalla for Federal penitentiary authorities, to Pier Island will be undertaken shortly, according to advices received in the city yesterday. Workmen at the site have virtually completed the men's encampment on the island, while work on a separate camp for female prisoners is being rapidly advanced.

An advance party of guards from the Federal penitentiary at New Westminster is under orders to proceed to the site, and actual transfer of the prisoners is expected at an early date.

Engineering officials of the Federal Department of Public Works went over the ground last week, finding the erection of necessary buildings far advanced, and an excellent and lasting water supply available in wells sunk to sandstone at the island. Rumors that Pier Island was deficient of water for domestic purposes fell to the ground when workmen for the Dominion authorities obtained an assured supply from the first hole sunk.

ABUNDANT WATER

The water situation was described yesterday by engineers of the Federal department as more than satisfactory. The original wells on the property were of the surface variety, with no assurance that they would not dry up in a normal summer.

To obviate this, wells have been sunk to the level of the sandstone where a superabundant supply of water is available. One well has already been put through, and a second is in course of completion.

Completion of the men's encampment will pave the way for actual transfer of prisoners at an early date. Up to the present the Doukhobors have been housed at Oakalla, for the Federal authorities.

A very significant episode in the drama that is being fought out behind the scenes was an inconspicuous announcement in a paper here that the British headquarters had officially denied "that representatives of British lumbering interests, with connections in Russia, form part of the British delegation."

TO PREVENT EMBARGO

While actually not part of the official delegation, British timber importers have been represented here since the opening day and their endeavors have been mainly directed towards preventing any embargo on Russian timber. One or two of the delegation have been inclining towards the claims of Canada, and as a result there has been friction within their own ranks. The majority, however, is favorable to a continuance of trade with Russia.

pause, other discussions are proceeding. AGREEMENT APPROACHING Great Britain and India are reported to be so far advanced in their negotiations that agreement in the near future is probable. British and Australian experts were this afternoon busily threshing out proposals and counter-proposals.

The question of free trade in automobiles between Canada and Great Britain is said to be receiving serious consideration. So far it is understood Canada has offered to allow motorcycles and sidecars in free, but if it should be agreed to broaden the proposal, it would be on the basis of an even deal, one country expected to get as much advantage out of it as the other. The tariff on foreign cars going into Great Britain is 33 1/2 per cent, and on Empire-built cars one-third less, or slightly over 22 per cent. The tariff under the preference on British cars coming into Canada is 15 per cent and 12 1/2 per cent, so both countries would be sacrificing protection.

OPEN COMPETITION

Such a step would likely open up keen competition by the British firms to sell their cars in Canada and the Canadian firms to sell in the United Kingdom. Such a deal would be on the understanding that the British content restriction be increased by the British Government to at least 50 per cent. It is understood the larger Canadian firms are anxious that Britain increase its restrictions in this regard so that Canadian-made cars will not have to compete in the British market with United States cars assembled here.

Free trade in cars would likely be pleasing to the buyers both in Canada and Britain. With the increasing gasoline taxes in Canada, the small British cars with more miles to the gallon, some claim, would appeal to Canadians. The bare possibility that Canadian firms would move their plants to Britain and supply Canada from there must be considered.

Workman Killed By Fall of Brick

VANCOUVER, Aug. 8.—Albert W. Stephens, who was injured on the afternoon of July 8 while working on the demolition of a brick wall on Seymour Street, died on Sunday evening in the General Hospital. His death is declared due to internal injuries suffered in the accident.

Stephens and two other workmen were buried in an avalanche of bricks, which descended on them as they were tearing away a portion of an old building. The remains have been removed to the city morgue. An inquest will probably be held.

WHALES CLUTTER UP BAY AT CHURCHILL

WINNIPEG, Aug. 8.—Four white whales, brought from Hudson Bay by the fish committee of the industrial development board of Manitoba and each weighing about 1,500 pounds, are on exhibition here today. They will later be made up into samples of oil, meat, fish meal and whale leather, to be sent to Great Britain with a view of ascertaining market possibilities for these products.

Up there in Churchill Harbor on Hudson Bay, the white sea mammals are so plentiful they make landing in a seaplane hazardous.

ANXIOUS EYES VIEW WEATHER

Visiting Astronomers Hopeful Skies Will Permit View Through Big Telescope

Meteorologically speaking, Victoria has never been under such close international observation as at the present moment. For representatives of half a dozen European countries and elsewhere are here at the present time with the party of noted astronomers, most of whom have come to Victoria for the express purpose of having a peep through the 72-inch telescope at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory. If the weather continues as it was last night much of their mission will have been in vain, but everyone is hoping that even should the visibility prove disappointing today the skies will clear before the visitors depart on Thursday for California, en route for the Eastern States. Another visit will be made to the observatory today.

"Please make it clearly understood that the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory will welcome any of you at any time during your stay here," Dr. J. S. Plasket, the director, reminded members of the visiting party yesterday.

MOTOR DRIVE

The principal thing in yesterday's programme was the motor drive through the Malahat and tea at Butchart's Gardens on the return to the city. Transportation arrangements were made by the local section of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, and although the visibility was not as good as it is sometimes, the visitors expressed themselves as delighted with the prospect seen from the lookout down from the Summit of the Malahat, as well as with the beautiful countryside. Victoria members who went along in the capacity of hosts and guides pointed out some of the interesting landmarks en route.

The return trip was made via the Mill Bay ferry, Butchart's Gardens and the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Little Saanich Mountain. At "Benvenuto," the guests were enchanted with the beauty of the gardens and the rare hospitality shown by Mr. and Mrs. Butchart. Although not here at the present time, Mr. and Mrs. Butchart had left full provision for the entertainment of their distinguished visitors. They enjoyed an organ recital while tea was being served. The whole house was thrown open, all the rooms being prettily decorated with flowers to harmonize with the furnishings. Mrs. J. S. Plasket and other Victoria ladies assisted with serving tea.

RARE GARDEN

The rare loveliness of the gardens at the present time so appealed to the guests that many carried away packages of seeds which they will plant in their own gardens to remind them of the delightful occasion. Miss Kathleen Murray, an astronomer from the Cape of Good Hope, South Africa, on behalf of the visitors, expressed profound

Conservation Board Sees Equipment Ruined When Gas Pressure Released

TEST EXPENSIVE IN TURNER VALLEY

CALGARY, Aug. 8 (CP).—While one well rushed forth its contents out of control, Turner Valley Gas Conservation Board today issued instructions for all Turner Valley wells to increase production. The board's orders place the valley gas production at 200,000,000 cubic feet daily, and this will continue for about three weeks while the board makes further conservation tests.

RUNNING WILD

Officials of Hylo Well No. 1 maintain the closing in of the well by the board during conservation tests resulted in the explosion and fire that caused $15,000 damage Sunday. The well was running wild today, and operators were unable to close it in because of damaged equipment.

The board, acting under Alberta Government orders, is testing the gas flow of all Turner Valley wells with a view to arriving at a production figure that will insure longer life to the field. Wells are being closed in during the tests, despite objections of several operators, who claim closing in might result in serious explosion due to the great gas pressure.

EQUIPMENT IN RUINS

Sunday afternoon Hylo No. 1, huge wet gas well that has been held down to 1,500 pounds pressure during the conservation tests, burst forth with a terrific roar when instructions were issued to release the gas. In the presence of the Conservation Board officials the released gas spouted up the hole with considerable force, the gas ignited, and in a short while the derrick and other equipment was in ruins.

Track Rules At Olympics Are Changed

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8 (AP).—The International Amateur Athletic Federation today cut off its track rules to provide that "a runner finishes a race when he breathes the tape."

There has been conflict over this question, with some authorities holding that the runner's entire body must pass the finish mark before the race is over and the stop watch clicked.

However, in the case of a competitor falling across the finish line, the I.A.A.F. now rules that he will not be considered to have finished unless his entire body is over the line.

VANS REACH MANY ISOLATED PEOPLE

A caravan of sixteen vans, each in charge of two women, is now at work in the isolated districts of the Prairie provinces and British Columbia in connection with the Anglican van service under Miss Hasell.

The extensive and missionary character of their operations is indicated in the statistics of last year, when there were fourteen vans and twenty-nine workers.

The report was as follows: New members enrolled on the S.S. by post, 4,752; S.S. by post members re-visited, 7,416; Sunday schools started, 61; Sunday schools helped, 171; homes visited, 7,525; day schools visited and Bible lessons given, 328; services taken, 157; classes given to children anywhere, 409; addresses given to adults on religious teaching and training in prayer and worship for children, 216; children found for baptism and names given in to the clergy, 1,383; miles traveled, 51,477.

The Man Who Has Children To Educate

THERE is good news for parents who are wondering if they will be able to give their growing children advanced educational training.

The London Life has two systems especially designed to meet this situation. No. 1 plan provides that for a very small sum you can guarantee that, in case you should die, the funds will be ready for school and also university training for your children.

No. 2 plan enables you to spread the cost of their education over a period of years to lighten the burden.

It's worth while to have full information on a problem so vital to your child's future. Would you like details of proposition one, or two, or both? Use the coupon.

Too Many in Training For Church Work

The Protestant churches in Germany find themselves in the dilemma of having more candidates for the ministry than they can possibly use. The computation is made in Die Christliche Welt, according to The British Weekly, that one-half of the present candidates may find themselves without a settlement.

The requirements of the 18,000 parishes are for about 830 candidates yearly, or 2,130 for the four years' course of study, whereas there were 7,500 divinity students registered last year. Many of these, however, for various reasons, will not be candidates for German pastorates, which will reduce prospective ordinands to about twice the number required.

The Countess de Martel, well known to the older generation as the writer "Gyp," died recently in Paris, aged eighty-one.

Matrimonial Usages Of Japan Astonish Innocent Traveler

Sinclair Gives Illuminating Details of Methods of Winning Blushing Bride—Divorce Simple
but Broken Hearts Are Not Unknown

KOBE, Japan—Ninety-six more or less blushing brides sang out their wedding vows this sunny Saturday in old Japan, but only one of these had ever had a proposal of marriage, not one had ever been kissed, only two had engaged rings and several had never seen their lovers until they stood up in ceremony gowns to say "I do."

GORDON SINCLAIR

Four hours later one of the brides was a man-gled shred of girl just able to whisper, "I loved Awaji. I made me marry Katsuchi. I am sorry for all this fuss." She had jumped in front of a train at Osaka.

With the girls still living, the Osaka Mainichi, largest paper in the East, dashed off an editorial defending her "suicide" and then thought so much of it they printed it in English and Japanese. "How can a girl who has bestowed her heart on one man help disliking a second to whom she has been 'given' by the will of others like a slave? It is time our girls had something to say about their own love affairs," the paper declared.

I squeezed my way into an Osaka bound radial to get the low down on love stuff in the land of the rising sun—and you'd be surprised.

Neither the Japanese Romeo nor his Juliet has anything whatever to say about diving off the deep end into matrimonial seas. Neither do the parents of the bridegroom. His married friends take care of that and he buys his wife with cash money if he has it. The bride's parents get the money.

Suppose you are a young Tokio bond salesman with money in the bank and a pain in your heart. You get tired knocking around with the boys and coming back to a lonely boarding house every night. You know any nice girls? "Do I? Say, there's Honorable Miss Oshio, Honorable Miss Shizu and lots of them. Sure, do you want me to act?" "Yes, Hara, I wish you would."

Hara immediately has an official position. He is the go-between.

ARRANGED BY GO-BETWEEN
More than ninety per cent of all Japanese marriages are arranged by the go-between. Hara speeds off to the home of the girl's parents like a man carrying good news and tells them he has a suitor. He's a bond salesman getting $40 a week, he's finished his time in the army, comes of good stock and has a bright future. The parents are interested, so he talks to the girl herself. Makes a date with her. Perhaps he takes her to a concert or a stroll.

under the cherry trees or even to the movies. Friend Romeo will be there and so will the parents. Romeo and the parents will look each other over critically and carefully. Then Romeo will feast his eyes for the first time on his future wife, but nobody will be introduced. No, no. That would start the ball of formally rolling. Up to now they're just pecking. Just playing for leads. They are all in the category of the guy who didn't know it was loaded. Besides, Romeo the bond boy has a couple of other prospects to look over.

Next day the buddies bend elbows over a bar and talk about love in the abstract. He thinks perhaps that trim little miss in the peach blossom kimono is all right. Yes, he'll look into her. So an appointment is made for him to meet the parents. This is all horribly formal, with the giving and taking of tea, gifts, bows and what not. Each person gives the other the dope on his police record of all things, and the palaver adjourns.

During the adjournment each party rushes off to the police station, pays a dime, and looks up the dope on the other parties. Everything is there for three generations back. How much they owe and how much they own. Do they run around with other women, have an overdraft at the bank, neglect a sour breath, read naughty books or take from raggy knees. It's all in the police record. It tells if they take pictures or keep white mice. It describes the Summer holiday they took in 1922 and mentions the date little Oscar first showed signs of the mumps. Part of Japanese efficiency this and a marvel of detail about everything. Right now they've got two or three pages about me, and when the room girl sneaks through my papers tomorrow the police entry will probably be making fun of my Oriental amour.

JAIL FOR KISSING BRIDE
If everything is satisfactory, there is more bowing and fussing and hocus pocus. After that the parents tell their daughter she is to marry so and so on such a date and that happens to end all that. The groom is then permitted to call and in the boom of the family he is introduced. The whole show is cluttered up with embarrassing details, not the least being the payment of money for the girl. A fair average price is $500 yen, which, at current depressed exchange, is about $200. Ordinarily, however, a yen is almost a dollar, which makes brides come a little more expensive. It still is single if they didn't come free in Canada.

If the parents are a decent sort, as parents usually are, they are at once given the girl's money and she buys clothing, sheets and other bedding with it. She takes those with her to the wedding. Sort of clutter up the place, but it looks swell to see all the fluff duffies. The honeymoon is pretty much the same as our honeymoons except that the young couple don't kiss. If they do it means jail or a stiff fine and a black entry that can never be rubbed out of that ever-watchful police book.

That's the general wedding practice, but every now and again there are snags. "Modernists" they call them here. Sometimes a fellow will fall in love with a girl and up and ask her to marry him. Horrible breach of tradition. What's worse, the girl sometimes says, "Right, let's do it" and they do. This causes the priests to preach about the downfall of flaming youth, and the papers to bellow "shame," but still it happens now and again. A girl was even married a while ago with her shoes on. Can you imagine that? They still talk about it in awed whispers.

COMPLICATIONS
The real complications come when two or three young fellows are after the same girl. She's not supposed to know all about this, but if you believe all that old honey, you believe the one about the stork. She does know, and that's where little Miss Sunshine gets in her oar—and usually has her own way.

Divorce this side of the Pacific is simpler than A. B. C. Miss and he simply go to the ever-curious police and say they don't wish to live together. They are mutually disgusted. Okay, it's done. The police advise and the courts separate. If one party rebels and wants to stick by the old farm and fireside, there must be reasons shown. Reasons for divorce are (1) adultery by the wife—anything goes where hubby is concerned; (2) serious crime resulting in lengthy imprisonment for either man or wife, and (3) failure to produce a son.

Practically none of these things are fought out before the assembled jury and news hunters. If the husband discovers in an instant of intrigue, she is expected to suicide, and usually does. Often they both do. A matter of honor, and the self-killing in such a mussy way. If he goes, she goes. It's a long spell some other escape is worked out. But the usual ground for divorce is dissatisfaction with each other, and just in case you are curious on the statistics of love, Japan, where girls don't choose their own husbands, has only eleven divorces for every 100 in the United States, where love is popularly supposed to conquer all. Or what have you?

To Open Annex to Research Laboratories

THREE views of the new annex to the National Research Laboratories, which has just been completed on a ten-acre site near the confluence of the Ottawa and Rideau Rivers in Ottawa, are shown in the above picture. The building will be officially opened on August 10 by Lord Beesborough, assisted by Premier R. B. Bennett, H. H. Stevens, and Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council. The opening ceremonies will be broadcast throughout the whole of the British Empire, after which the delegates to the Imperial Conference will be invited to an inspection of the laboratories. The building, which was erected by the Government of Canada "to aid in the extension of scientific knowledge and its application to the utilization of Canadian resources," is of Canadian sandstone and contains in its four stories 560,000 cubic feet of space. The building faces Sussex Street and overlooks the Ottawa River.

CAR OVERTURNS; WOMAN INJURED

Seven Other Occupants Escaped Unscathed—Mrs. Linnell Has Fractured Rib

Mrs. S. Linnell, of 2812 Shakespeare Street, suffered a fractured rib and bruised head, in an automobile accident at the intersection of Inverness Road and Quadra Street on Sunday afternoon.

There were eight persons, including the driver, in the machine when it overturned. The car plunged into a ditch when another machine cut sharply in front of it, according to the police report.

Mr. Linnell's machine was turned on its side, but with the exception of Mrs. Linnell, all occupants escaped uninjured.

Government housing legislation in the Irish Free State has caused the erection of more than 24,500 houses in the last ten years.

ELM IS TOO BIG FOR BOULEVARDS

W. H. Warren, City Parks Superintendent, Expresses Opinion Before Gyro Club

In the opinion of W. H. Warren, City Parks Superintendent, elms are not suitable for planting in boulevards. Addressing the Gyro Club yesterday, Mr. Warren touched upon the subject of the boulevards and the planting of trees on them. He contended that elms and such trees were too large for boulevards. In this city when the planting took place, some of these larger growing trees were set out only twenty feet apart. In Vancouver they had planted them forty feet apart. The matter of when to remove the surplus trees was one of policy to be decided by the Parks Board. The utilization of relief measures in this respect had been adopted to some extent here as a matter of policy.

EXCELLENT BOULEVARDS

The providing of boulevards in the city of Victoria had started about twenty years ago and he pointed to the system that existed throughout the city as perhaps the best in Canada.

The advantages of parks to a city and the rewards to be gained from such places of recreation were dealt with. He pointed out that there was active recreation and the passive type each having its advantages. The active form was that in which the participant took part in games and exercises. The passive recreation was found in watching such games and in walking among the parks and elsewhere and enjoying the beauties.

"HEALTH FACTORIES"

Parks, said Mr. Warren, were really health factories for the people. They were, therefore, a good investment for any city.

On the subject of parks proper, Mr. Warren said that Victoria had some 1,650 acres, which include 1,000 acres at Elk Lake, 360 acres at Mount Douglas and 155 acres at Beacon Hill or with the foreshore and adjoining sections 180 acres.

While Mr. Warren did not favor any extensive policy with regard to maintaining a large zoo at Beacon Hill, he felt that a collection of birds might be encouraged. In this way there was a lot of pheasants now in the park and encouragement was given to mallard ducks to make their home there. These multiplied so fast that they had to remove many of them to Elk Lake.

IMPROVING ROSS BAY

An attempt was being made to put Ross Bay Cemetery in better shape. Experiments were being tried in the growing of suitable trees along the waterfront. The sea spray in the winter had caused a lot of trouble, but they were attempting the growing of Sitka spruce and he had hope that this would succeed.

The criticism that more flowers were not grown in the parks was met by the parks superintendent, with the statement that this was a matter of expense. The cost of flowers was large and there was also the constant depredations of the public in taking plants away as soon as they came into bloom.

buy almost anything on earth for 15 cents. Inside one of the folding doors stands a weighing machine. Beside it hovered a little girl of tender years, and very nice to look at, who quite evidently wished to try out the weighing machine. We had two coppers in our bank, so she got weighed, and we got weighed! The machine has been sent away for repairs!

Our small friend actually weighed as much as thirty-nine pounds, and every bit of her worth her weight in gold. But wait till you hear the weight we weighed! Lumme! It's too awful! Just fourteen stone!

Oh! I forgot! Of course you won't understand what that means. You see we two rovers come from England, where they still use that outlandish method of keeping tab on how much a man, or woman, or child, has to lug around with them every day, and how much dead weight one has to try out the bed springs with, or how much the long-suffering young man has to put up with when his "steady" sits on his knee. Dear me! It is so long since that happened to two rovers; we have quite forgotten how long we waited for a weight to send a right or left foot to sleep.

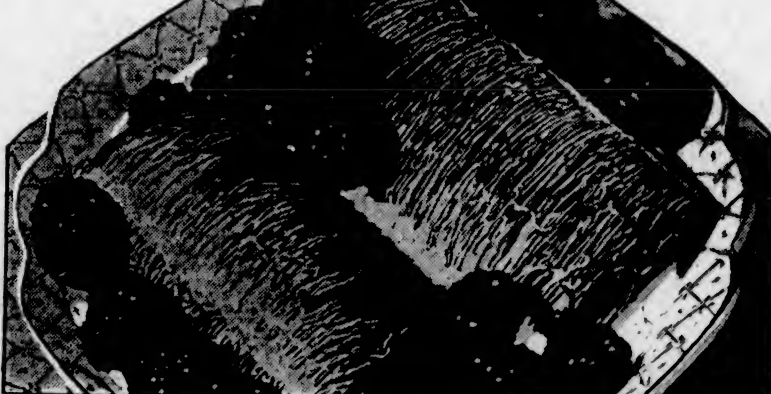

A GOOD CENT'S WORTH

We don't know how much wool's worth, but we do know that for one lone, single, and only cent we can get a whole mint's worth of very useful information. The little card that comes out of the moutpiece of the weighing machine, holds a wealth of valuable secrets in the pasteboard keeping. The exact weight of the person being weighed, without any fudging, or augmentation, or subterfuge, or lying is given to one, and no one else need know how much or how little one really

PROMOTING TRADE DEVELOPMENT

It is a matter of considerable satisfaction to the people of British Columbia that Premier Tolmie has led the fight at Ottawa for increased facilities in the British market for the lumber product of Canada. He has been fighting chiefly for his own province, and, incidentally, for Canada as a whole. The enthusiasm and persistence he has shown have led to the whole-hearted support of the premiers of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. In fact it may be said that he has won all Canada to his way of thinking. The outcome, which is destined to have most satisfactory features in the matter of the development of the lumber trade, will redound to the advantage of the Dominion as a whole.

On the ground alone of what he has been doing in Ottawa in the matter of a wider lumber trade Dr. Tolmie's presence there was amply justified. He has fought the battle of a restoration of prosperity in this province through the absorption of thousands of workers in British Columbia's main industry. That is a struggle well worth while and the fact that he should have enlisted the support of the rest of the country indicates the manner in which the future of this basic industry is viewed as a subject of prominence before the Imperial Conference. There are already indications of a substantial character that Premier Tolmie is on the eve of success. The British delegates are prepared to set bounds to the lumber imports which Great Britain now derives from Soviet Russia. They are ready to give a more substantial preference to the Canadian product. As well, there is reason to believe that a quota of lumber from this Dominion for British uses will be guaranteed annually. In other words, plans are now being laid for a definite restoration of the lumber industry and this will be of particular advantage to British Columbia as the main source of soft wood supply in the country.

From the beginning of his premiership in this province Dr. Tolmie has concentrated on the development of wider markets for the products of British Columbia. He has concentrated particularly on the British market, and, prior to the Imperial Conference, was successful in increasing exports. He sent lumber commissioners to both Britain and Australia. He was active in the presentation of this province's case in the trade agreement negotiated between Canada and New Zealand. In a score and one other ways his Government has been working continuously for trade development. His determination to be on the scene during the discussions at the Imperial Conference gives every evidence of producing the results for which he is striving. Had British Columbia remained passive, or left the advocacy of its welfare entirely in the hands of the Federal Government, it is conceivable that the latter, so preoccupied with so many aspects of the trade outlook, might not have been able to give the case for British Columbia the attention which it deserves in the eyes of the people of this province. With Dr. Tolmie at Ottawa there has been no pause or cessation in the struggle for recognition of the great natural resources that British Columbia enjoys. The best of hopes prevail that there will be a happy outcome.

A CONTINGENT AGREEMENT

The settlement reached at Lausanne respecting the piling down of the sum which Germany should pay to the Allies, following a three-year moratorium, is a "Gentlemen's Agreement." In other words, while the pact to abandon the term "reparations" is signed, its ratification is postponed until such time as a satisfactory settlement has been reached between the creditor Governments and their own creditors. In other words, the agreement with Germany is contingent on Britain, France, Italy and Belgium reaching, or failing to reach, an understanding with the United States on war debts. The present idea is that the separate Powers will conduct separate debt negotiations with the United States. When each has reached some measure of arrangement those Powers will meet and decide the extent to which such arrangement is satisfactory.

If the settlement hoped for with the United States on the subject of war debts can be arranged the Lausanne Agreement will be ratified. The understanding, however, is that no matter what happens there can be no change, so far as the Allied Powers are concerned, in the arrangement now reached with Germany. There is, however, the possibility of political changes in Germany bringing about a revision in the official German attitude on what transpired at Lausanne. The point is that each Power is free to make what settlement it can of its war debts. Following that happening, should it eventuate, there would be a discussion as to the revision of war debts between the creditor countries. These, in brief, are the implications of what may arise out of the Lausanne Agreement.

MODERN YOUTH

Much attention has been attracted by a denunciation of the modern boy by Mr. Cuthbert Blackiston, headmaster of Lancing College. He describes him as "timid, cowardly, untruthful, easily bored, vain and dishonest." This criticism was voiced in an address to the British Medical Association. Mr. Blackiston believes there is no comparison between the boys of today and those of thirty years ago. The keen, adventurous outdoor sportsman of other days have been replaced, he says, "by youths who do not know how to saddle a horse and who deem themselves out like peacocks so that they will look pretty." He believes initiative is considerably impaired and that youths are unwilling to go abroad to seek their fortunes. Mr. Blackiston blames it all on the war, or possibly he means the aftermath of the war.

The indictment is too sweeping, and possibly the full text of the address would show that it is to a certain class that the headmaster of Lancing is alluding. That class exists. So does a class every whit as adventurous, as courageous and as sporting as any of its predecessors. There is not much loss of muscular fibre and the will to do and dare shown in the record-shattering performances at the present Olympic Games. Such athletes as are taking part there are drawn from thousands of others in different countries, many of whom are little inferior to their compatriots at Los Angeles. Where Mr. Blackiston is right is in his estimate that too many of modern youth are given to foppishness. They are the exceptions, however, and not the rule. Youth, to some extent, is enervated by the plethora of modern inventions, but games are played more strenuously, competition in careers is more intense and the race of life is more than ever to the strong. If there is a coterie that succumbs to pleasure and falls by the wayside their existence should hardly prove any logical reason for the indictment preferred by Mr. Blackiston. The history of modern aviation alone tends to disprove something, at least, of what he says.

The Melbourne Argus, in commenting on Mr. De Valera's refusal to accept the principle that a tribunal arbitrating between British States must be refused to accept this suspicious and unworthy view. The unchallengeable integrity of high British tribunals constitutes one of the greatest glories of the British race. To allow outsiders to sit in judgment upon purely inter-imperial disputes would be an innovation hurtful to the dignity of every member of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Australia is a member of that family, is concerned at the latest development, and is entitled to be heard when the family's honor is threatened.

The Central Committee of the Communist Party is levying and collecting forcibly the Ukraine's full quota of grain—5,900,000 tons. This is less than last year, but owing to mismanagement and the apathy of the workers there is a deficiency in the area sown. The Ukrainian grain growers, although many of them are Communists, object to the levy by the Central Committee. They object to it, because, for one thing, there is hunger prevalent in Ukrainian villages. At Kharkoff three high officials of that state have been sentenced to death "for distorting the freer trade policy." In the Ukraine, Leningrad and other centres, for a similar offence, fifteen others have received the death sentence.

The Glasgow Herald says it is very doubtful if the Irish Free State wants a settlement with Great Britain. In other words, it is more anxious for a fight. In such a fight the Herald sees a serious outlook for the Irish producer, who is absolutely dependent on the British market for 95 per cent of his trade. Mr. De Valera's reprisals will not improve the situation one iota. They will, however, says The Herald, "show the seeds of economic chaos. Ireland's economy is to be offered at the altar of the political prejudices and ambitions of Mr. De Valera and the I.R.A. (Irish Republican Army)."

THE MILLIONAIRE

I have a four-walled heaven-place
Illumined by an Angel's face.
A garden of old-fashioned bloom,
Of pinks and poppies, finds good room;
With margold and mignonette
They join in paying Summer's debt.
Some friendly maples like the walk
And there are nooks for quiet talk.
A precious Elf keeps living bright,
By driving off dull care at night;
For who could worry care at night;
Against the magic of his smile!
My bank account of sound content
Increases as the years are spent.
Why should I fret with golden care—
Whom Love has made a millionaire!

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

For so it falls out,
That what we have we prize not to the worth
Whiles we enjoy it, but being lacked and lost,
'Tis then we rack the value; then we find
The virtue that possession would not show us.
—Shakespeare.

Mahatma Krishnamurti is his name (which we shall not repeat because it is such a long name and imposes such a strain upon the somewhat common mind of British typesetting machine operators and may be a source of exasperation to proofreaders). So it may be sufficient to say that the young Mahatma is another Hindu philosopher who has come out of the Orient to enlighten the understanding of the Occident. We trust there may be no misunderstanding of the purpose of the above sentence—for we have no inclination to scoff at the philosophy of life of the profound and mysterious doctors of the Orient. If the sole purpose of life is the attainment of happiness in physical indulgence and mental contemplation, then the Orientals are more to be envied than the Occidentals.

But in this matter "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet." In the West we pursue happiness, and although it may be true that in the West happiness is seldom obtained, and when run down is usually of brief duration, pursuit has become a habit as distinguished from a philosophy of life, and the habits of aggregations of people, like the habits of individuals, are hard to overcome.

As the Mahatma has pointed out, in the West we crave things, and this craving, like the love of money, is the root of the ills which beset our life. But we submit it is also true that craving for things is the beginning of progress. If it were not for this human craving for almost everything, for clothing and motor cars, which to the Indian are non-essential things, and for ordinary articles of diet, which are essential things, and for special articles of diet, which are non-essential things, there would be a deeper stagnation of all industries than there are at the present time.

Very few common Occidental persons, in the matter of clothing, for example, would be content with merely a loin-cloth to cover their nakedness—which is still an essential convention except in a few social instances—and thus unadorned to sit down in silent contemplation of the follies of mankind. Thus conditions in the West are more complex than the conditions in the East, and we fear those conditions cannot be changed without a fundamental change in the dispositions of both mankind and womankind.

Craving for things may be the root of all national and international evils; but for this craving how many individuals in the West would be doing whatever work their hands can find to do, and how many individuals who are out of work would be diligent in their pursuit of some kind of work for their hands to do? For it is still true that men must work. We believe it is true that even this Mahatma is in a position to expound his Oriental philosophy of the beauties of idleness because somewhere in the Orient someone is working or somewhere in the Occident someone is contributing to maintain him while he is traveling through the countries of the world for the purpose of expounding his philosophy of idleness.

It is true that evil may come out of this human passion for possession of things; but it is also possible to postulate that good may come out of the human passion for possession of things. It may be true that the people who possess in the greatest degree the creative faculty are not always the principal beneficiaries of their industry or their genius; that the products of both mind and hand are too often exploited for the benefit of cunning manipulators; but is not that condition as true of the Orient as of the Occident—is it not even truer of the Orient than it is of the Occident? Is it not a fact that the Indian philosophers who expound mysterious doctrines and scorn the almost universal craving for things manage to exist without visible means of support, and could not live unless some industrious workers, either voluntarily or under compulsion, were laboring and producing to support them?

Is it not true that in the Orient there are vastly a greater number of exploiters as compared with the Occident? Is it not a fact that in the Orient there is a greater contrast between the plenty and the luxury enjoyed by the few and the poverty endured by the many than there is in the Occident?

So while craving may be the root of all social evils, we fear it is inherent in human nature and will continue to persist as long as physical life endures upon the face of the earth, for it is inherent in the lower as well as in the higher order of creation. But for this desire or craving there would have been no Imperial Conference at Ottawa. The people of the British nations know that some of the nations produce things which their neighbors do not produce or cannot produce to advantage. They therefore crave for the things they do not produce, and are seeking means of exchange to their mutual advantage. If this purpose can be achieved, the craving for possession will not be evidence of a passion which should be suppressed, but an indication of a virtue which should be cultivated. The phenomenon known as static is something to be overcome, whether it be a celestial or a terrestrial manifestation.

The Rhyming Optimist

ANCIENT LOVE SONG
I do not ask that you take thought
Of me, dear,
Crown me with garlands, pour me
Purple wine,
I cannot wish your life were aught
Less, free, dear,
Or weave one chain that would
Your heart confine.
Your dancing steps within great
Sahur's palace
Today are light as wind-flowers
In the sun;
But when life offers you a darker
Chalice,
When youth's fires die and
Beauty's spell is done,
When strange Lachesia, ever grimly
Weaving,
Must spin for you the garments
Of decay,
When your sad eyes seek other lovers
Leaving,
I will be true, I will not turn Away.
When slaves are gone and pearls
And rubies wasted,
When lutes are silent, hushed all
Reveries,
When dreary life alone must still
Be tasted,
I will ask you, dear, that you still
Share with me.

CIVIC TAXATION

Sir,—We are by the published figures of building permits issued by the city and adjoining municipalities, for the last seven months, that the city of Victoria issued thirty-three permits for homes as compared with 113 issued by Saanich. These figures speak for themselves, and show the effect of failure to reduce taxation by cutting down expenditure as the Victoria Ratepayers' Association has time after time requested the City Council to do.

All workers in the building trades and allied industries are affected by this and, indirectly, the whole of the public. Although its membership is confined to property owners, the Ratepayers' Association feels justified in asking for support in its efforts from all sections of the community.

It is difficult to understand the policy of increasing taxation at a time when people are least able to bear the burden, but the tax notices just sent out show an increase in many cases of 10 per cent, and in addition by the by-law passed early in the year, there is a new mortgage of $50,000 added to the property of the ratepayers, the payment for sinking fund and interest of which will commence next year, and will have to be met for the next fifteen years.

ARTHUR HINDER,
Secretary of Victoria Ratepayers' Association, 50 Moss Street, Victoria, B.C., August 6, 1932.

NEW WELAND CANAL

Sir,—Your issue of even date carries an item in lower left hand corner, "To carry equivalent of 2,350 miles of bread," referring to the Saanich connection with the opening of the new Welland Canal. I have held 871,555 bushels of wheat.

The writer, an old Kingstonian, well remembers, in the '90's, a new vessel claiming to be the largest schooner that could pass through the same canal of that day, came into the Kingston harbor, and was visited by a very great number of the citizens, who looked on her with great proportions with amazement.

She was the Jessie M. Scarth, built by the late M. B. Scarth, of Toronto, who was very prominent in settling Manitoba in the '

Western Provinces Reach Accord Upon Relief Proposals

British Columbia Aims Problem Created by Great Drift of Single Unemployed Into Province—Further Dominion Aid Is Sought

HON. J. W. Jones and Hon. W. A. McKenzie returned to the city yesterday with word of full accord reached at the Edmonton gathering of Western Provinces and municipalities on unemployment relief affairs. The first result of the conference will be presentation of a joint memorial to the Federal Government, asking Ottawa to assume half of the cost of relief in respect to unemployed families, and full responsibility for the care of single men in concentration camps.

From the British Columbia viewpoint the fact that Western provinces suffered proportionately more than other parts in Canada, in that their industries were not stabilized, that immigrant settlement was comparatively recent, and that lack of export markets had disrupted basic lines of business endeavor. Climatic conditions also operate against the milder parts of the West.

MAKE UNITED PLEA
Initially, the municipalities, twelve of which were represented directly by their officers, asked that the Federal Government bear 65 per cent of the cost of families, the provinces 25 per cent, and the cities themselves 10 per cent. In addition, single men should become a Federal responsibility, it was suggested. These views, said Mr. McKenzie, were modified on discussion before the whole group, and the terms of a joint memorial to Ottawa agreed upon, as set out already.

drifting of the unemployed, while national unemployment registration of single men, if undertaken, would go far to solve the entire question of transients. Proposals from the gathering are now being laid before the Federal authorities at Ottawa.

RELIEF PLANS ARE OUTLINED

Mayor Leeming Returns From Conference of Premiers and Mayors
A scheme of unemployment relief, which would lessen the burden borne by municipalities at the present time, will be presented to Premier R. B. Bennett at Ottawa for consideration by the conference of Western premiers and mayors, it was announced yesterday on the return of Mayor David Leeming from Edmonton, where he participated in the discussions.

The chief proposal is that the Federal Government share 50 per cent of the direct relief and that the remaining portion be divided between provincial and municipal governments. The former class of municipalities will not be so great. Municipal treasuries have been so heavily taxed for funds to meet relief requirements that some of the corporations are in a financially unsound position, it was revealed at the conference.

NATIONAL REGISTRATION
The Mayor said a delegation would be sent to Ottawa to present the proposals. The Dominion Government, he declared, would be urged to take a national registration of all single men and segregate the unemployed war veterans from the nonveterans. The former class should be given relief through the pensions department, it was suggested.

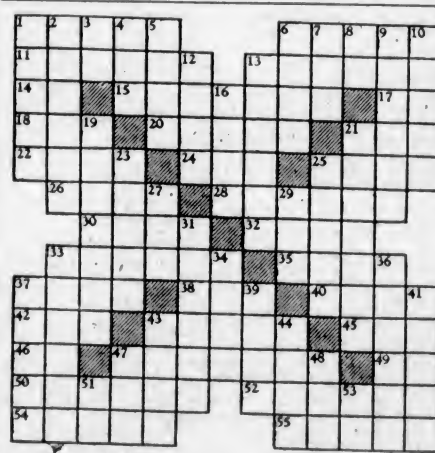

Opening of Federal work camps for single men also will be urged. The Mayor said that the conference would also be urged.

ROTARY OFFICERS GATHER AT SALEM
SALEM, Ore., Aug. 8 (AP).—More than 100 presidents and secretaries of Rotary Clubs in the Pacific Northwest attended a district assembly here today. The session, mostly of an instructive nature, was presided over by William McGilchrist, Jr., of Salem, district convener.

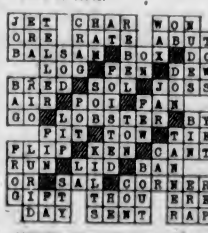

Nearly all of the seventy-one clubs in the district were represented. These are from Alaska, British Columbia, Washington, Oregon and Idaho. Speakers included W. C. Mainwaring, of Vancouver, B.C.; Charles Gomer, of Spokane; Superintendent A. C. Hapton, and Adam McKee, of Everett, Wash.; Thomas Goodlake, of Victoria, B.C., and C. A. Howard, of Salem, state superintendent of public instruction.

Auto census takers have just found that Durham County, England, has only one car to every 106 persons, which is the record for the country.

Keen Rivalry Over Forthcoming Revolver Shoot at Esquimalt

The city police will enter four teams in the team shoot which takes place during the annual revolver tournament, to be held at the Esquimalt Naval Yard range on August 17, it was announced yesterday.

Keen interest is being taken in the meet this year by all Vancouver Island policemen, and particularly the Victoria force. During the past two weeks several practice groups a day have been keeping the range busy, and some good scores should be turned in when the contest is held.

The following are the teams that have been selected: First, Detectives Jack Rogers, William Stark, Walter Calwell, Harvey Bamford and Sgt. Thomas Hall. Second, Constables Roy Woolsey, Maurice Wilkinson, Thomas Bannister, Claude Belcher and Detective Henry Jarvis. Third, Constables Harry Mercer, Douglas Bone, Stephen Dunnell, Thomas Stevenson and George Hutchinson. Fourth, Constables R. Lanning, Jack Blackstock, L. Parr, Sgt. John Ireland and Sgt. Clear Canadian Skies Delight Astronomers

Sir Frank Dyson, Astronomer Royal, Greenwich, Speaks at Dinner Given Here Last Night in Honor of Visiting Scientists

"I think you should encourage the study of astronomy more than we do in England, because you can see the skies better," declared Sir Frank Dyson, Astronomer Royal of Great Britain, in the course of the friendly and informal talk which he gave at the dinner held last night at the Empress Hotel in honor of the party of visiting European and other distinguished astronomers.

Sir Frank was responding to the toast to the International Astronomical Union, which had temporarily changed its name, as president of the organization, was coupled. It was one of several speeches made in the course of the evening. In each felicitous expression of appreciation was extended to the Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada and to Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, and his staff, for the hospitable reception accorded the visitors here.

RESPOND TO TOAST
The dinner was under the auspices of the Victoria centre, the president of which, P. H. Hughes, presided as chairman and toastmaster. In response to the toast to "Our Guests," proposed by Dr. Plaskett, who introduced many of the noted visitors by name, representatives of the individual countries responded as follows: Miss Kathleen Murray, Cape of Good Hope, South Africa; Professor C. H. d'Arzou, director of Bologna Observatory, Italy; Prof. M. Paul Hebrunner, of France; Dr. F. W. Aston, F.R.S., Trinity College, Cambridge; D. Duncan, Glasgow, Scotland; Prof. Th. Niehammer, of Basel, Switzerland; Miss K. Williams, of London, England, secretary of the Royal Astronomical Society, and W. Goodacre, of England.

Other speakers included W. E. Harper, representing the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, of which he has been president, and H. Boyd Brydon, secretary of the Victoria centre of the same organization.

"This is a delightful and memorable international gathering, with distinguished representatives of several countries, and we wish to extend to you all, as representatives of what is not only an international but universal science, a very hearty welcome to Victoria," said the chairman in his greetings.

CAR ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL

John William McKay Succumbs to Injuries Received Near Comox

COURTENAY, Aug. 8.—John William McKay, reported on Sunday as seriously injured, died this morning. McKay's home is in this city. The fatality occurred on Saturday evening when a coupe, the property of Paul J. McKinnon, of Vancouver, allegedly driven by Owen Dalglish, also of Vancouver, left the Dyke Road between Comox and Courtenay.

The car is reported to have turned over several times. It eventually crashed through a barbed wire fence below the road, where it came to a standstill with its four wheels in the air.

Captain George Wootton, another officer, also of Vancouver, and Dalglish were practically uninjured. McKay was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was attended by Drs. J. McKee and T. A. Briggs.

He was thirty-two years of age and was unmarried. The three men were members of the crew of the tug Trullia, of the B.C. Transport Company, and were returning to their boat in the Courtenay River after visiting Comox. Dalglish is being held by Provincial Police.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

PLANNING THE ATTACK
Many bridge players apparently suffer under the impression that their skill in the play of the game is shown by the number of finesse attempts. A finesse is an encircling movement, which seeks to take advantage of the position of cards held by the opponents and thereby gain a trick. If there is no other way of finding the necessary trick, take advantage of the position of cards held by the opponents and thereby gain a trick. If there is no other way of finding the necessary trick, take advantage of the position of cards held by the opponents and thereby gain a trick.

TODAY'S POINTER
In deciding between taking a simple finesse or playing a hand for a squeeze, the declarer has available considerable information through a count of the suit distribution of opponents' hands. This information may either clearly indicate that the squeeze is the only possible method of making the hand, or, on the contrary, disclose that the outstanding hand may be finessed against in any event.

1. An unwise double, but doubtless predicated upon the theory that his partner's club suit is solid and that the diamond king should furnish the setting trick. The margin, however, is not sufficient, even though the most accurate play is necessary to accomplish the contract.

Against the contract of four spades, West opened the club deuce, which was won by East's king, and the ace returned, West discarding a diamond. As a matter of fact, the squeeze was already beginning to operate, although East at this time did not realize it. A third round of clubs was ruffed by West, who returned a heart, which was won with the ace in dummy. South now proceeded to lead five rounds of trumps. On the spade knave, West discarded another small diamond, but on the final round of trumps was unable to further defend the hand. In actual play, he bared the diamond king, realizing that he must retain his heart holding to prevent the run of the hearts in dummy. South then crossed to the dummy with his last heart, cashed the two top hearts, led dummy's remaining diamond, and refused the finesse. The ace dropped West's king, and the queen won the thirteenth trick.

The squeeze, the means by which this hand was made, was a much better play than the final West's shortage of clubs suggested that he held at least four hearts, and thus, regardless of the size of the cards in that suit, East could not hold deuce.

LOVELY HOUSE MYSTIFIES
Hayes, England, has many strange stories of a large vacant house, but none can be verified. Today its large walled-in gardens are ablaze with exotic flowers, and rows of hot-houses contain choice fruits and flowers. Both lodges are occupied and several gardeners are employed. At night large dogs patrol the lonely grounds. No one has set foot in the house since it was closed forty-five years ago. And no one is admitted to the gardens. Every morning the mansion gates are opened and the head gardener drives out in a smart horse-drawn trap, with baskets of flowers and fruit. These he takes to the owner of the house, an elderly man who lives in seclusion in another large house in Beckenham. For forty-five years he has refused all offers for the sale of the house and lands.

FUNERAL RITES HELD
The funeral of Mrs. Cora Emma Tugwell took place yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Clem Davis officiated. Many friends were present. The remains were forwarded to Vancouver for cremation.

Donald Reed Comes Back to Film-land After Fortune Frowns on Early Efforts

It took a few knockouts by Dame Fortune and a discharge from his first "hit" in talking pictures to put Donald Reed on the cinema map. Reed, who appears in RKO-Pathé's "Westward Passage," starring Ann Harding at the Capitol Theatre, once was a leading man of real promise, in the days of the silent screen, but something happened and Reed slipped.

Today he is on the high road to a greater success than he ever experienced before and, strangely enough it was the beginning of bad luck that gave him his chance. He was given an obscure "bit" in "Westward Passage," when Robert Milton, the director, noticed his outstanding work. He inquired concerning the young man and fired him—but only so he could rehired him for a more important role. And now Donald Reed will tell you that Dame Fortune isn't such a bad girl after all.

picture for Columbia, admitted as much during the filming of the drama. When she first came to Los Angeles, over a decade ago, she was very young and full of illusions. One of them was that she would make a splendid criminal investigator. Although Miss Pitts doesn't regret her film career, she isn't entirely convinced, even yet, that she wouldn't have made an excellent lady Sherlock.

EMPIRE Jan Maruge, who speaks four languages and has been behind some of the most famous bars in fashionable London's West End, is playing an important role in the British picture, "Reserved for Ladies," in support of Leslie Howard. George Grossmith, Elizabeth Allan and Benita Hume, which is the feature picture at the Empire Theatre this week. Maruge, who in the picture presides over a full-sized cocktail bar in a Swiss tourist hotel, in real life speaks English, German, French and Italian and has been waiter at the Savoy, the Empress Rooms, Chez Taglioni, and the Piccadilly.

PLAYHOUSE "The Honor of the Family," one of Balzac's drollest stories, is now at the Playhouse Theatre. The picture, featuring Bebe Daniels, Warren William and Alan Mowbray, is a First National release and was filmed on an ambitious scale. "The Honor of the Family" was Otis Skinner's most successful stage vehicle. Also on the same bill is Dorothy Mackall, whose phenomenal rise to fame in the talkies reaches a new high point in "Radio Pictures," "Kept Husbands." The little blonde English star is supported by Joe McKee, Clara Kimball Young, Bryant Washburn and other favorites.

ROMANO As "Mary" in the powerful dramatic RKO-Radio Pictures offering at the Romano Theatre, Miss Dunne paints an unforgettable picture of a very modern young woman—but behind that is the impress of a charming actress' personality. One of these days Miss Dunne is going to be "discovered" all over again—as Irene Dunne, actress, fame all her own!

COLUMBIA Auto-racing scenes of THEATRE Universal's "Racing Youth," now appearing as the feature of the Columbia Theatre programme, were realistically filmed at California's famous Ascot Speedway, and scenes showing Frank Albertson at the wheel of a thundering race car are consequently real. June Clyde, Slim Summerville, Louise Fazenda, Otis Harlan and Eddie Phillips are featured in the picture. Also on the same bill is Joe E. Brown, in "The Tenderfoot."

Mrs. J. A. Goldsmith provided her annual treat to members of the Porter Chapter, I.O.D.E., Chemainus, and those of the general public who wished to attend, when Mr. Goldsmith conveyed fifty women and children to Kuper Island recently in his launch and barge. A very delightful picnic supper was served under shady trees in the grounds of the Indian Industrial School. Rev. Father William Schmitt and Sister Mary Joseph extended the courtesies of the Industrial School to those present and permitted an inspection of the school and garden. Mrs. Goldsmith holds this picnic each year, charging a nominal boat fare, in order to make her I.O.D.E. talent money, which amounted this year to $10.75. On the return to Chemainus in the evening a hearty cheer was given Mr.

Tillicums Chalk Up 4-0 Decision Over Elks Baseball Nine

Winners Blank Antlered Tribe and Have Mathematical Chance of Gaining Berth in Play-Offs—Tommy Musgrave Pitches Fine Game

HOW THEY STAND

W. L. Pct.	Elks	Tillicums

5 11 .312	Tillicums	5 11 .312

Next Game, Tomorrow—Sons of Canada vs. Green Mill.

With Tommy Musgrave hurling first class ball, Tillicums jumped back into the running in the Senior Amateur Baseball League last night at the Royal Athletic Park by drubbing the Elks, 4-0. By their victory, the Tillicums still retain a mathematical chance of grabbing a place in the play-offs.

Musgrave, seventeen-year-old sensation of the Twilight League last season, gave the Tillicums their fifth victory in fifteen starts by pitching one of the best games of his career. Tillicums' mound ace was afforded excellent support throughout the seven innings, his teammates being guilty of only one miscue. He struck out seven and issued one free ticket, while Lloyd Jones, of the Elks, fanned five and walked three.

Tillicums went into the lead in the second by driving a runner across the plate. In the third, the Elks went to pieces and the winners chalked up three runs on one hit, costly errors being responsible for the remaining two rallies.

EXPLANATION FOR SUNDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

Competitive Kissing—The Olympic Era was the Golden Age of ancient Greek sport. The athletic contests included competition in music, poetry, dramatic recitations, masculine beauty contests, drinking, staving awake, etc. But the strangest of all athletic competitions was the Dicoela originated by the natives of Megara, Greece. It was a competition in kissing and he who gave the sweetest kiss obtained the prize of a garland of flowers.

Victoria Makes Application to Enter Coast Soccer—To Be Decided Later

VANCOUVER, Aug. 8.—Slightly more than one hour was all the time required to clean up the agenda at the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Football Association. The more important business, including the election of officers, being left over until the reorganization meeting, which was set for August 20.

In a lengthy report of the past season's activities, President George Morton particularly stressed on the class of football played, the splendid spirit, the co-operation of all teams, the park owners and press. He was given a vote of thanks for his fine report.

The same four teams in the first division, St. Andrews, St. Saviours, Nanaimo City, and Victoria Royals, will again form the league this year, while Renfrew Argyle, Regina, Point Grey United, and Vancouver Scottish will perform in the second division. An official league will be dealt with at the reorganization meeting.

Interprovincial Golf Match Given Coast Next Year

TORONTO, Aug. 8.—The next Willingdon Cup competition for teams of amateur golfers and Canadian Amateur championship will be held on the Pacific Coast. This announcement was made Saturday night by W. H. Plant, president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, at a dinner given the players after Ontario's successful defence of the trophy.

The next Willingdon Cup match and the next Canadian championship will be played in the West—I mean the Far West," said Mr. Plant. "We have asked the British Columbia Golf Association to select the course for the tournament."

Star Upstarts Player Leads British Columbia Contingent With 78-77 for 155 Total—Jack Matson to Play Off With Seven Others for Last Two Place in Select Group

LAMBERTON GOLF CLUB, TORONTO, Aug. 8 (CP).—J. Thompson, diminutive Toronto shot-master of twenty years, who makes up for a lack of size and strength with a fighting heart, marched over to the Pacific Coast today in the unflinching of weather to win the qualifying medal in the 1932 edition of the Canadian amateur golf championship. Joe blazed through rain squalls, accuracy-destroying winds and eventually darkness to shoot an afternoon round of 72, which with his sound 75 in the morning, gave him a two-stroke edge over his closest rival.

A final putt of six feet that was dropped as automobile headlights pierced the darkness, climaxed young Joe's fight from behind—a fight that carried him past a half-dozen others who led him at the end of the first round.

A seasoned campaigner and another mite like Thompson stood second and third at the end of the day. Fred O. Hoblitzel, playing over his home course, compiled steady tallies of 74-75, the latter mostly in gathering darkness, to wind up behind the leaders. Phil Farley, also of Toronto, was third with 74-76.

But the defending champion, C. R. "Sandy" Somerville, from London, did not let the seekers after his crown steal the show. A disastrous morning card of 80 left Sandy tottering on his throne. His best effort on the outgoing par thirty-four nine of the afternoon round was a 38 and his chances of advancing into the match play elimination rounds brightened but little. The struggling champion began clicking off pars and birdies as rain fell and the wind changed with trigger quickness. Two birdies, six pars and a single one-stroke stray over perfect figures on the homeward journey gave Sandy a nine-hole count of 35, one under par, and landed him well within the circle of thirty-two qualifiers with 80-73.

MATSON IN PLAY-OFF

An even thirty men were assembled tonight of places in tomorrow's first round of match play at thirty-six holes, a grueling elimination fight that will continue throughout the week with the final on Saturday. This contingent had scores of 158 or better.

Seven contenders shot 159 and they will play off early Tuesday morning to decide which two of them will round out the first-round bracket of thirty-two.

British Columbia placed four par-abusers in the fight. Bob Morrison, Victoria, and a trio from Vancouver, Stan Leonard, J. Bell and Ken Black, carry the Pacific Coast challenge. Jack Matson, Victoria veteran, is among the 139 shooters.

Scores of the Coast players were Morrison, 78-77-155; Black, 75-81-156; Leonard, 82-75-157; Bell, 78-80-158; Matson, 75-80-159.

TRADE EXHIBITS ARE SIGNED UP

Contracts Awarded to Nine
More Firms—Displays
Now Total Sixty-Five

The last contracts for display space in the Manufacturers' and Industrial Buildings for the British Columbia Agricultural Association's annual fair, August 22 to 27, have been signed and there is absolutely no more space available in these buildings. It was announced yesterday by Alderman T. W. C. Hawkins, member of the executive.

Nine more firms have been added to the list previously published, bringing the total number of exhibits in the two buildings to sixty-five. The latest additions to the exhibitors' list are as follows: Magic Products, Ltd.; Spoke's Transfer; Kiwanis Club; B. C. Sheet Metal Works; Union Oil Company; David Spencer's Ltd.; Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association; and Mallick's Ltd.

Automobile dealers are now discussing arrangements for the annual automobile show held in conjunction with the fair. Approximately 100 cars are expected to be on view in the Automobile Show Buildings. Many advance 1933 models are expected to be on display.

With the opening of the fair office in the Seward Building, entries of field crops and floral exhibits in the Main Building will begin to pour in and officials in a few days will be able to give an estimate of the amount of floor space taken in this building.

How It STARTED
JAN. 1930

THAT WORD "SPAGHETTI"
It is no exaggeration to say that this dish of Italian inspiration—the little tubes of a flour paste intermediate in size between macaroni and vermicelli—is a popular food throughout the whole Western world. And we may bring upon our heads considerable displeasure for publishing anything that may detract from its appealing aspect. And yet how it started plays no favorites, nor will it conceal for that reason the origin of its name. "Spaghetti" is derived from the Italian "spaghetto," meaning "a small rope." Come to think of it, to a real spaghetti enthusiast, a rope is the same by any name.

TROUBLED ALL LIFE WITH CONSTIPATION

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN
Brought Real Relief

If you are subject to headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness and other effects that so often result from constipation, read Mrs. Turner's voluntary letter.

"For the past six months I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and cannot praise it too highly.

"Am fifty years of age. All my life have been troubled with constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has not only helped me, but has cured me.

"I thought I couldn't like the taste of bran, but Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious." Mrs. C. J. Turner (address upon request).

Tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things which overcome constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestine; Vitamin B to help along the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Certainly this is more natural than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

Old Mr. Toad Meets Danny Meadow Mouse

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Who warns of danger is indeed the kind of neighbor that we need.—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Hop, hop, hipperty-hop went Old Mr. Toad. Jolly, round, bright, Mr. Toad was high in the blue sky and shining his brightest. It was not. Yes, sir, it was not out there on the Green Meadows where there was no shade. Yet there was Old Mr. Toad traveling at a rate that indicated that he was in a great hurry to get somewhere. At least, that is the way it looked. Hop, hop, hipperty-hop, hop, hop, hipperty-hop he went, and he made each hop just as long as he could. And all the time he kept trying to roll his eyes so as to see behind him. He had completely forgotten that only a little while before he had said that nothing in all the Great World could make him travel another step that day. He had forgotten the heat. He had forgotten his dry skin.

He hadn't gone far when he met Danny Meadow Mouse. Danny's eyes opened wide in surprise. "Hello, Old Mr. Toad!" said he. "You seem to be in a hurry to get somewhere."

"No," he panted. "I'm in a hurry to get away from somewhere," and continued on his way. Hop, hop, hipperty-hop.

Danny watched him for a few seconds, then turned and ran after him.

"What is your hurry?" he demanded. "I thought you never traveled on a hot day like this."

"I don't when I can help myself," panted Old Mr. Toad. "Do you see anybody chasing me?"

"No," squeaked Danny. "Nobody is chasing you."

"Are you sure?" panted Old Mr. Toad, still hopping along, but with shorter hops than before.

"Quite sure," replied Danny. "Who did you think might be chasing you?"

"Bluffer the Adder," replied Old Mr. Toad in a tone of great fright. "I thought it must be one of the Snake family by the way you were hurrying," said Danny, "and I was a little anxious myself. But as long as it was Bluffer and not Mr. Blacksnake there is nothing for me to worry about. Bluffer never bothers me."

"But he does me," retorted Old Mr. Toad, looking behind him anxiously. "I believe that he lives on Toadskin and Frogs. I know this much, the farther I am from that fellow the better I will like it."

"Did you really see him?" asked Danny.

"Of course I saw him," replied Old Mr. Toad. "There is a big board back there and I had crept under one end of it to get out of the sun and spend the day in comfort when I heard someone moving up near the other end and went to see who it might be. It was Bluffer."

"What was he doing?" demanded Danny.

"How should I know?" retorted Old Mr. Toad. "I didn't stop to find out. I got out of there in a hurry and here I am. Phew, how hot it is!"

"It is queer to me that Bluffer didn't see you and catch you when you were right under that board with him," said Danny. "Of course I am glad he didn't, but just the same I think it a bit queer that he didn't even try to catch you. I believe I will go back there and see if he is still there."

"Don't!" exclaimed Old Mr. Toad in a tone of terror. "Are you crazy? Do you want to be swallowed alive?"

Danny chuckled. "If it is Bluffer the Adder, sometimes called Hog-nosed Snake, I am not afraid," said he. "He isn't fast enough to catch me. If he wanted to, which he doesn't, and I am curious to know why he didn't try to catch you when he had the chance. You are

SCIENTISTS WILL TRY EXPERIMENT

Dr. Francis A. Aston, F.R.S., of Cambridge, England, Speaks of Plans for Viewing Eclipse

An experiment, by means of which the flash spectrum of the solar eclipse may be observed for a relatively considerable time during the forthcoming eclipse, is to be tried by Professor H. Dingle, of the Imperial College of Scientific Technology, according to Dr. Francis A. Aston, F.R.S., of Trinity College, Cambridge, England, one of the members of the astronomical party which reached the city on Sunday for a four days' visit.

An attempt to discover the element which causes the green corona line is one of the principal objectives of the scientists, who are gathering in the Eastern United States and Canada to view the eclipse, Dr. Aston states.

The British scientists are working in co-operation to this end, and will try to photograph the spectrum in the ordinary light and with ultraviolet and infra-red sensitized plates.

Dr. Aston himself will observe the eclipse with the Royal Astronomical Society's Spectrograph at Magog, Quebec, under Professor J. F. M. Stratton.

For the first time in his history, the Royal Astronomical Society, Ireland, opened recently without a single case to be heard.
